Dear friends and colleagues,

Cordial Greetings

We cordially invite you to the 11th Annual conference of Indian Society of Hospital Waste to be held in Bangalore at M S Ramaiah Medical College, Bangalore

M.S. Ramaiah Medical College, Health Care Waste Management Cell – Department of Community Medicine a founder member of ISHWM had the privilege to host the inaugural conference of ISHWM in 2001 and national level scientific session in 2004. We now have the privilege to host the 11th annual conference

The tangible and intangible benefit of a sound system of health care waste management to the health system is immense. Understanding the impact of health care waste management on quality in patient care and economics of health care and an exchange of ideas and concepts would indeed contribute to building an evidence base for further systematic effort. Each modification in waste management practices is an improvement and a value addition to ensure patient safety. Today, the stakeholders for sound system of health care waste management include not just the medical fraternity, health administrators and managers but also health planners, international donors and policy makers.

ISHWCon 2011 will be a platform to review progress in the last decade, to update to meet the new challenges regarding health care waste management and will be an excellent opportunity for exchange of views and opinions among stakeholders. The theme for the conference is:

“Value addition to Health care through improved Health care waste management”
